Neutrality Act Battle Moves to House

SENATE OK'S CHANGE WITH 50-37 VOTE

Leaders Expect Passage of Revised Measure by Easy Margin.

FULL DAY DEBATE SET

Changes by Senators Lift All Restrictions on Shipping.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's drive for authority to deliver American war weapons in American ships to belligerent ports today faced its final and crucial test in the house after winning senate approval, 50 to 37.

House leaders, who plan to call the neutrality law revision bill up for consideration Wednesday, the day after Armistice day, said the lower chamber would endorse it by a margin of 50 to 75 votes.

Opposition leaders disputed this and promised a fight.

The neutrality law revision bill originated in the house, limited to repealing the section which prohibits the arming of merchant ships It was approved 259 to 138. But when the senate passed it last night it carried authority for American ships to enter belligerent ports and pass through combat zones.

Instead of the usual one hour granted by house rules for discussion of motions to recede and concur in senate amendments, Speaker Sam Rayburn was planning to provide at least one full day's debate, in view of the importance of the legislation.

The senate's enlargment of the bill to a repeal of all shipping restrictions of the neutrality law, caused opponents of foreign policy to fight it as a war measure.

The sharpness of cleavage between the two viewpoints was illustrated last night as the senate approached its final vote, when aging Sen. Hiram W. Johnson (R., Cal.) made his only speech of the 11 days of debate.

Shaking a forefinger solemnly, the only gesture he employs, Johnston recalled, with obvious emotion, the night nearly 25 years ago when he voted to put the United States into the World war. In voting on this bill, he said, he felt he was deciding virtually the same question.

No sooner had the 75-year-old Californian taken his seat than Sen. Carl A. Hatch (D., N M) was on his feet. He looked at the white-haired old man, smiled.

"None of us is for war," he said softly. The stilled galleries strained to hear him.

When the time came to vote, the senate rejected every attempt to change the bill by amendment.

Congress Probing 'Dollar-a-Year' Men at Capital

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The dozens of "dollar-a-year men" on defense assignments here faced investigation today from both the senate and house sides of the capitol.

Chairman Truman (D., Mo.) announced that the special senate defense investigating committee was checking carefully on all the business executives and other experts who have flocked to Washington to accept places in the mushrooming defense set-up.

"Nobody can live here on a dollar a year," Truman said. "We have asked for all information on corporation connections, other salaries, and defense contract awards to former or present employers."

Dollar-a-year men first came into national prominence during the World war, when businessmen volunteered to serve their country without salary. Under an 1870 act, however, they had to receive some compensation, to prevent the possibility of subsequent claims for salary.

Flynn-Damita Romance Going, Going—Gone!

Beauteous Lili Seeking Divorce From Her 'Cruel' Errol.

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
U. P. Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—The beauteous Lili Damita, who once threatened to poke a reporter for saying she intended to divorce Errol Flynn, today—yep, you guessed it.

She charged the mighty Flynn in Superior court with cruelty, asked the judge for custody of their six-month-old child, and said her husband already had made a property settlement.

What the divorce will cost Flynn is problematical, but he may have to revise the figures he posted with another judge in another suit concerning the high cost of living.

He listed his expenses at $2,000 per month for bed and board for self and wife, $4,000 for press agentry so the cash customers wouldn't forget him, $5,000 for taxes, and $1,000 for his yacht and other incidentals. That's $12,000 a month, any way you add it, for keeping the wolf away. Add some Hollywood alimony to that—and wow!

Miss Damita's suit was not entirely unexpected. It was, in fact, something of a relief to Ickes Appointment Received With Skepticism.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Appointment of Harold L. Ickes as coal and coke co-ordinator was received with skepticism by some coal-state congressmen today. Several asserted that the move was unnecessary.

Chairman Andrew J. May, D., Ky., of the house military affairs committee told reporters the nation "doesn't need a co-ordinator" and that the coal industry is "doing its full share for national defense."

Rep. Jacob E. Davis, D., O., commented that he hoped Ickes "gets along better than he did with oil," while another Ohio congressman, Republican Robert F. Jones, said he guessed "we're going to have an Ickes coal shortage now."

BOARD FINISHES OFFICIAL COUNT

Few Changes Made In Totals, Results of All Contests Last Tuesday Stand.

Fred M. Bushnell, Democratic candidate in last Tuesday's mayorally race, gained a tardy vote on Mayor W. J. Locke today when the Richland county board of election board members completed their official count but in doing so only cut the mayor's winning majority to 1,767 votes.

The board announced that the official count made no change in any of the contests, one to three votes being added to the original counts in most. The biggest difference was found in the vote for the half mill fire levy with eight votes being slubtracted from the affirmative poll. This, however, only cut the approving majority from 7,859 to 7,851 votes.

Meeting yesterday afternoon to decide what would be done about a tie vote for one of the three board of education posts in Sharon township, election board members decided to ask E. A. Ommeg and Stanley Tarven to toss a coin for the office.

Ommeg and Tarven received ten votes each for the third place on the township education board. If

Marines Ordered to Be Ready To Evacuate Posts In China

BULLETIN

SHANGHAI—(U.P.)—American authorities today attempted to arrange for two liners to call at Shanghai to evacuate Americans as the Shanghai municipal council took drastic steps to avert rice riots.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Orders have been issued to United States commanders in the Far East to prepare for immediate evacuation of American marines from China, it was learned today after President Roosevelt had disclosed the subject is under consideration.

It was understood the marines, located at Peiping, Tientsin and Shanghai, will be withdrawn soon unless there is a sudden improvement in U. S.-Japanese relations.

In all, there are 970 marines in China. Japanese troops currently occupy Tientsin and Peiping and Shanghai is completely encircled by Nippon forces. In event of an outbreak of hostilities between this country and Japan, the small and inadequate marine force would be nothing more than a "suicide" battalion, subject to quick annihilation.

The president told his press conference yesterday in disclosing that the marine withdrawal is under consideration but that he did not know when a decision would be reached.

JAP SEIZURE FEARED

SHANGHAI—(U.P.)—Shanghai observers believed today that Japan almost certainly will take over this wealthy commercial center if the United States withdraws its marines from China.

Once the marines are withdrawn, it was believed, there will be no bar to the Japanese taking over the Shanghai defense sector now patroled by the American forces. The Shanghai volunteer corps lacks sufficient manpower to take over the marine zone.

ACTION BY FDR TO STALL RAIL STRIKE WAITED

Union Leaders Preparing To Issue Call For Walkout Dec. 5.

'INSULTED' BY OFFER

Pay Raise Proposed by Board Turned Down at Meeting; Key Men Affected.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — Action by President Roosevelt to head off a national railroad strike was predicted today as embittered leaders of the "Big Five" operating brotherhoods prepared to issue a strike call, probably for Dec. 5.

Decision to call a strike was reached yesterday at a meeting of the Brotherhoods' 400 general chairmen They said a 7½ per cent wage increase, recommended by the president's emergency board and tentatively accepted by railroad management, is an "insult." They had asked a 30 per cent increase.

Because of the 30-day "cooling off" period provided by the railway labor act, Dec. 5 is the earliest date on which the strike could be effective. A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, said this date will probably be chosen when the call is issued Monday or Tuesday.

Since mediation machinery under the federal railway labor act has now been exhausted, action by the president himself would be the logical next step toward solving the dispute, railroad men stated. It was suggested that the president may call rail management and union leaders together at the White House.

Although the five operating brotherhoods represent only 350,000 of the 1,250,000 men involved, the operating employes hold the key positions—locomotive engineers, trainmen, conductors, firemen and enginemen, and switchmen. The fourteen non-operating unions, representing 900,000 employes, in the past have followed the Brotherhoods' leadership.

Ford Official Says Union Can't Control Members.

DETROIT—(INS)—Harry Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Motor company, issued a statement today in which he criticized the UAW-CIO and charged that "unauthorized and almost daily" work stoppages are costing the company "millions of dollars" and delaying defense production.

Bennett charged the union with inability to control its members and said the reason more than 20,000 workers were sent home yesterday was because of what he termed the "sabotaging" of essential machinery and two "wildcat" strikes perpetrated by 270 workers.

"The refusal of these wildcat strikers to work," Bennett said, "in addition to the sabotaging of vital machinery, is the real and only reason for the loss of work to 20,000 employes"

MORE SNOW DUE

Temperature Below Freezing And May Drop Lower.

Traces of snow which melted as fast as it hit the pavement continued to remind Mansfield residents today that winter was preparing to move in soon.

The forecast for tonight and tomorrow calls for cloudy and slightly colder weather with snow flurries throughout the night.

Temperatures dropped to 31 degrees, two degrees lower than yesterday's reading and one degree below freezing. The mercury never got above 38 all day yesterday and the average for the past 24 hours was only 34.5 degrees, nearly 10 below the 16-year average.

By noon today the thermometer showed a rise of only one degree from the morning's low and hung at the freezing point. Snow flurries and light rain yesterday accounted for .04 inches precipitation.

Ondov Comes Back to City, This Time In Preaching Role

Michael Ondov, the Wittenberg divinity student who won the admiration of Mansfielders for his long battle against paralysis in General hospital following an automobile accident, will come back to Mansfield Sunday to speak during Thank-offering services in St. Paul's Lutheran church.

It was just four years ago last Wednesday that young Ondov suffered a broken back in an accident near Hayesville and was brought to General hospital with the entire lower part of his body paralyzed. He was riding with five other Wittenberg students on their way to Cleveland when tragedy overtook him.

"Mike," as he was known to the hundreds of friends he made here, lay in a hospital bed for nearly a year and a half. Gaining enough strength to permit him to walk with crutches and a brace, he returned to his home in Lakewood. British Admit Heavy Cost In Night Bombing

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—Informed quarters noted signs today which they believed indicate Adolf Hitler is about to launch a new peace offensive. British quarters believed Hitler's objective would again be to divide Britain and Russia.

(By United Press)

The Royal Air Force launched its biggest—and most costly—attack of the war upon Germany, Italy and the occupied continent last night and early today.

Huge fleets of British Stirling, Halifax, Wellington and Whitley bombers participated in a sweeping attack which hit Berlin, Cologne, the Ruhr and targets in northern France and Italy.

But the attack ran into unexpected storms and icing conditions over the continent and when the score was totaled by the British air ministry today, the losses stood at 35 bombers, a record figure for both German and British night bombing.

The British made no secret of the fact that the raids were a more severe blow to the RAF bomber command than to the German war effort.

The cost was estimated by the British as at least $4,000,000. It appeared that this was an underestimate since the big, heavy bomb-load two and four motored bombers utilized in the attack are extremely expensive. And some 100 airmen were lost—killed or captured

Most of the British planes were said to have been forced down en route back home after dumping their bomb loads over Berlin and the other German targets.

The Germans admitted that seven persons were killed and 32 injured in Berlin alone.

A more successful phase of the British air offensive was scored over Italy where the Rome communique admitted that long, determined attack was carried out against Brindisi. Forty persons were killed and 80 injured in the raid, the largest losses yet admitted in a single attack on the Italian peninsula.

Despite the night losses, the RAF was back at the attack this morning. Strong squadrons of fighters and bombers roared across the channel in clear weather, carrying out a heavy attack on objectives in northern France.

An early morning attack on Oslo, the second in two days, was also reported. A Nazi report claimed three British planes were brought down there.

On the Russian front there were few indications of any substantial changes in position.

A delayed dispatch from Kuibyshey reported that a German attack upon Volokolamsk had been beaten back by the forces of Lieut.

U. S. ENLARGES ICELAND BASE

Naval Shore Operations Added To Vital Island Outpost In North Atlantic.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Establishment of a naval operating base in Iceland was announced today by Secretary of the Navy Knox, raising that island outpost to one of the navy's most important operations centers.

A brief announcement said that Rear Admiral James L. Kauffman had been named commandant of the base.

"The command of the U. S. naval operating base, Iceland, shall include all United States naval shore activities, United States naval local defense forces and district naval craft and any additional units as may be assigned by the Atlantic fleet," it said.

The navy said that the establishment of the base served for both administrative and task purposes, the latter referring to actual war ship operations.

The designation of a base as naval operating base is a step taken only when extensive and varied naval activities both ashore and afloat are centered around one place.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

GEN. JOHNSON: Writes Own Obituary, Chloroforms Self

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—Current reports are that the anti-inflation price-control bill, under presidential urging, is now to extend a ceiling over all prices, including wages and farm prices. That would be very encouraging — except for a single circumstance. News reports to this effect persist in calling this extension "the Baruch plan." So far as the now triumphant extreme New Dealers in charge of the defense effort are concerned it might as well be called the bubonic plague plan.

Johnson

They have their own ideas about industrial mobilization. It is a common saying among them that they don't want to be fighting a 1941 war on a 1918 formula. They have other ways to control prices. One way is to increase taxes. Low taxes may now make high prices and high takes make low prices, but if so it is the first time in the history of the world. Nevertheless that is how it is going to be.

Mr. Morgenthau wants to have employers nick 10 per cent to 15 per cent out of workers' pay envelopes. He wants to call part of it taxes and part increases in social security and then spend large parts to give away to Britain and China and Russia. He says this will keep prices down.

One thing sure, it will keep wages down. Whether it will keep prices down without a price control bill also is pure guess-work and my guess is that it is ridiculous to suppose.

I should think that the average man or woman would say: "I don't want to see you make any guinea pig out of my envelope. Suppose you use the simple and tried method that is presented to you to keep prices down by keeping them down—by direct action. Then tell me what my part is in paying defense taxes. But don't take this chance of jimmying prices up and cutting wages down at the same time. We've got enough chances to take. And another thing, I don't want my employer acting for you to be telling me how to spend my money. I work for it and earn it. The check-off is bad enough in labor union practice for labor-dues. If the government once starts forcing the boss to check-off my pay for everything it happens to decide, at the end of the year, I'm soon going to look like a share-cropper in parts of the cotton belt and will owe somebody two months' pay."

There is hardly an impartial and competent observer that does not know that you can't control inflation without controlling all elements of inflation including wages and farm prices. But for reasons just stated even if the president can swallow the words "Baruch plan," this plain common sense is not apt to be adopted.

One reason is the one just stated—the cocky arrogance of some of our professional "thinkers" another is the selfish habit of each strong pressure group to advocate sacrifices for all other groups but none for itself.

Is there any hope? Only if the president would take a fearless, forthright stand. His I. L. O. speech was logical and beautiful but logic and beauty won't do this trick. He has got to be what he once described himself to be: "a tough guy on the model of the barracuda and the shark."

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

THERE is a strange and new atmosphere of excitement on Broadway these evenings—new at least to those of us who don't remember the early days of World War I, when perhaps the same odd, lavish, hectic spirit was in the air at night where people gathered.

Kilgallen

You hear that champagne is hard to get, and expensive, you see it down on the menus at $19.50 a quart, and yet people are drinking it everywhere, more, it seems, than ever before. The gala places rock with people every night; women wear clothes of incredible luxury, jewels of fabulous worth; dance floors are packed; customers stay later and later in the night clubs, as if they are reluctant to leave the noise and music and go home to bed.

And then there are the uniforms in the night clubs and bars and restaurants, everywhere you go. The brown and the blue. Ours all over, frequently a tall Britisher, very young and with pink cheeks, standing at the bar at 21, or a Norwegian, fresh of face and light-haired, and also very young, dancing awkwardly at the Stork Club; there are even girls in uniform, hatless and with Sam Browne belts. Girls from England, dancing, but not having fun.

Perhaps it was this way before, only I do not remember. Perhaps this is the way a big town behaves in the shadow of war when it is a rich town, and a brilliant town, accustomed to gaiety and reluctant to go without its fun. Perhaps this is the old eat-drink-and-be-merry spirit; perhaps this is the big fling of the babes in the wood before the tax ogre gobbles them up; maybe this is the great feast celebrating the belt-tightening of tomorrow. Whatever it is, it is infectious. It is a "come dance with me" spirit, you can catch it by walking into a crowded room, by watching wine bubble into a fragile glass; you feel it, listening to the expensive laughter in places where people buy laughter with their food and drink.

Whatever it is, it is new.

It is new to me to see men in uniform anyway, but especially it is new to see men who are having fun in a hurry. That is the way their faces look. They are having a good time fast.

I saw two of them who were like that sitting close to the bandstand at Jack Dempsey's just a couple of nights ago. They wore R. A. F. uniforms and they looked unbelievably young. They were blue-eyed and blond and their faces were innocent; they had not had time to set into any other mold.

They were breathing in the music and noise and laughter and talk and the smell of food; you could see them do it, breathing it in against the times when there would be no smell but cold air and the clean smell of an engine, no sound but the big sound of a motor, no sight but the far-going familiar sight of sky and cloud. And that monotony the prelude to danger.

NEW RELIEF WAR LOOMS BETWEEN STATE, BIG CITY

Cleveland's Mayor-Elect Says He'll Go After Bricker For Share of Surplus.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Another fight between Ohio's largest city and the Republican state administration over relief funds appeared inevitable today.

Even before taking office, Democratic Mayor-Elect Frank J. Lausche has indicated that he will "go after" Gov. John W. Bricker on the question of the state sharing surplus funds with municipal governments.

If another city-state dispute develops, it might overshadow the row between former Mayor Harold H. Burton and Governor Bricker two years ago. Burton, now a U. S. senator, had pressed the governor for more generous relief allotments. But Burton and Bricker are both Republicans and their fight could have been more bitter if one had been a Democrat, as in the present case.

Lausche takes office Monday. At the election last Tuesday, he was elected by a 50,000 plurality and a special operating levy was defeated by Cleveland voters. Cuyahoga county voters have defeated a special welfare levy twice this year.

Lausche announced that he would "do everything I can to persuade the governor of Ohio to relent from his arbitrary position."

"It is apparent," he said, "that the citizens are reluctant to vote favorably upon any levy to provide money even for relief while the state of Ohio hoards large sums in the state treasury which have been paid in by local communities through the sales tax.

"While I shall hesitate to resubmit the levy unless it is absolutely necessary, if I determine that it is indispensible, I shall have no alternative."

Governor Bricker has rejected several demands from state legislators and city representatives for a special session of the legislature to re-allocate state revenues.

The governor and his aides have taken the position that the estimated $20,000,000 state surplus will be needed for future obligations and because of uncertainty over federal tax plans.

COURT TO TEST BENEFIT CASE

Payment to Worker Who Quit Because of Cold Causes BUC Controversy.

COLUMBUS—A court test was promised today on the Ohio Bureau of unemployment compensation's right to pay jobless benefits to a worker made idle because of illness.

The test was precipitated, BUC Administrator H. C. Atkinson said, by a Montgomery county judge's decisions upholding an employer's appeal against payment of such a claim.

Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert sought a rehearing of the case before Common Pleas Judge Lee Mills of Dayton, Atkinson said, but the rehearing was refused and the BUC decided to carry the fight to the court of appeals.

The controversy involves jobless compensation paid to Miss Mabel Brandon Crowe, an employe of the Brown-Brockmeyer company who was granted $20.50 a week for 16 weeks after quitting work Jan. 22, 1940, because of a cold.

Judge Mills, in reversing a BUC review board decision, held yesterday that Miss Crowe should not have been entitled to compensation because the state unemployment compensation law was passed for the purpose of tiding over an employe who had lost his job. "It is not an act for compensation by reason of ill health," he added.

The BUC director said benefits were paid to Miss Crowe after a BUC referee and the board of review both returned decision in the applicant's favor after hearing appeals from the company.

The benefits were paid, Atkinson said, on the ground that Miss Crowe was idle because of "unsuitable working conditions." She claimed to have caught cold while working in a draft in the factory and refused to return, even though called back twice by the firm, for fear of a recurrence of the illness, the director said.

CHAPMAN HEADS NEWLY-FORMED COUNCIL OF FUND AGENCIES

Ralph Chapman, executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was elected president of the newly formed Council of Community Fund agencies at a luncheon meeting yesterday at Mansfield General hospital.

The council, composed of the executives of each of the 10 Fund agencies and a representative appointed by the governing board of each agency, also elected M. P. Wolcott vice president, and Miss Marjorie Palmer secretary. Wolcott represents Friendly House and Miss Palmer is superintendent of Visiting Nurses.

These officers together with two Council members, also elected yesterday, will comprise the council executive committee. Mrs. Irl Fisher, Y. W. C. A. representative and Lowell Bourns of the Y. M. C. A. complete the executive group.

Jane Williams, Community Fund executive secrtary, will be an ex-officio member of the executive committee by virtue of her office, according to a revision made in the constitution adopted by the council. The officers will serve until the annual meeting in May.

Miss Eleanor Bond headed the constitution committee composed of Ralph Chapman and Russell Gimbel, and Mrs. J. Ward Ingraham served as chairman of the nominating committee that included Mrs. George A. Mead and Chapman.

Organized to provide a medium through which all Fund agencies may study the problems affecting the social welfare of the community, the council is an outgrowth of the series of weekly luncheon meetings for agency executives inaugurated by Mrs. Williams when she became executive secretary of the Fund early last spring.

Appointed temporary council chairman at the organization meeting last month, Mrs. Williams presided at yesterday's session. A committee to outline a program of study will be appointed by Chapman early next week.

PLANNED LIFE 80 YEARS, SET HIS OWN DEATH

Body of Prosperous Farmer Found In Small Hotel Room In Minneapolis.

(By United Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — A prosperous 80-year-old farmer, feeling himself in the "yellow leaf" stage of life, wrote the story of his own death for the newspapers and chloroformed himself in a small hotel room.

The story identified him as M. T. Cummings, and authorities learned he operated a small dairy at Drayton, N. D. The note began:

"Should any industrious reported feel it in the line of his professional duty to make a story out of this gruesome incident, I ask him to respect the privacy of my helpless body by not publishing the more revolting details.

"To requite him for this consideration, I enclose matter from which he may make such a story or may excerpt from it or engross it verbatim as best suits his pleasure."

Cummings' own story followed. It said:

"In room 311 of the Milner hotel was found this morning the body of an aged man who undoubtedly had been asphyxiated by his own hand. He had registered as John Ward but did not otherwise try to conceal his identity as M. T. Cummings of Drayton, N. D. A plausible explanation for his having used an assumed name would be that he thus could not be traced by oversolicitous friends or relatives.

"From the matter found in his room we are able to construct something of his life story. He would seem to have been a fairly prosperous man. Having planned his life with reasonable success for 80 years, he wished to plan its close.

"Still in robust health and in full possession of his faculties, yet he knew he was 'in the yellow leaf' and sooner or later would be a charge or a burden on those he loved. He would rather be remembered by his friends as a strong, virile man than as a sick and doddering old doddard and at last be caught like a wolf in a trap and be cudgled to death by disease and infirmity x x x x

"Let those who fear death say that this man was insane else he would not have destroyed himself. Others may argue that he disclosed most perfect sanity. If Doctor Osler is right, if man's usefulness to his race ceases at an average of about 60 years, then this old man had given the world 20 years of hard faithful service for good measure. Requiescat in pace x x x x

"M. T. Cummings.

"Thanks!"

With Cummings letter were two valentines written in verse to his wife, who was said to be visiting relatives in Nebraska.

Thanksgiving plans are on the wing at Country Day school where the students are planning to fill a basket for a needy family. Some of the jellies made by the students last fall will go into the baskets and the other "makings" for the holiday dinner will be assembled the Tuesday before Thanksgiving so that delivery may be made in plenty of time.

Assigned to the medical corps, he has gained 12 pounds, and tells his former buddies at the postoffice that army life "isn't bad."

Mansfield motorists may soon find bargain prices for parking. Mayor W. J. Locke said today that the new parking meters that he had asked council to purchase for installation on downtown streets not already metered would give two hours and a half parking time for only five cents. The mayor explained that he was in favor of purchasing a meter which gave 30 minutes for a penny. The 414 meters in the business section in use for the past year give only an hour's parking time for a nickel and twelve minutes for a penny.

Sweeney Told Lorain Officials Inefficient, Incompetent.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Secretary of State John E. Sweeney said today that three Lorain county commissioners had requested him to oust the Lorain county election board for inefficiency and incompetence.

Sweeney said the commissioners told him that the board recently awarded a contract for poll books to a high rather than low bidder, causing the county an extra expense of $260.

The secretary of state said he would confer with members of the election board before acting.

DIES IN BLAZE

Oil Worker's Body Found In Flaming Automobile.

FREMONT —(UP)— The burned body of a man believed to be Ted Decker, 40, an oil worker, was found early today in a blazing automobile three miles southwest of Gibsonburg.

The remains of what authorities believe was a fuel container was found nearby. Dr. Wayne E. Brown, Sandusky county coroner, and Sheriff Myers investigated the possibility of violence.

Ultra-Violet Ray Traps Stealer of Defective Dimes

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—As the result of an ingenious use of a secret solution an an ultra violet ray lamp, George John Kraft, 35-year-old employe, today faced charges of stealing defective dimes from the United States mint and spending them as bona fide money.

With two secret service agents, Mint Superintendent Edwin H. Dressel, and Kraft, who was accused of stealing 22 dimes found in his pockets, looking on, one by one the dimes were subjected to the ultra-violet rays, and one-by-one, they became fluorescent.

Seeing this, Kraft confessed: "All right, I stole them."

The fluorescence was due to a secret solution into which the mint dips defective coins. Invisible to the eye until subjected to ultra-violet rays, the solution labels the coins. They are then stored until they can be remelted.

The agents charged Kraft stole the defective dimes and spent them, not realizing that each coin left a tiny deposit of the dried solution in the lining of his pockets.

Just as the coins showed an uncanny light when placed under the rays, so did the lining of his pockets.

RAF LOSES 35 PLANES IN RAID ON CONTINENT

100 Airmen Missing After Costly Attack Against Berlin, Other Targets.

Gen. Konstantin Rokossovsky who is rapidly becoming the chief Russian hero of the war.

After beating back a Nazi panzer division and two motorized regiments, the Russian reports said, Rokossovsky's men assumed the initiative.

Kuibyshev said German attacks on Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow, are stalled. The Germans now are at the outskirts of Tula but have been unable to cross a river in front of the city despite nine attacks.

The German high command, as usual, had nothing to say about the Moscow front. It confined itself to a claim that fortifications on the Kerch isthmus in the Crimea have been broken through and that a Russian cavalry division has been beaten in fighting in Crimea's Yaila mountains.

Shanghai was worried by President Roosevelt's statement that marines may be withdrawn from China. They feared that if the marines are pulled out, the wealthy international settlement there will moderate its comment against the United States. One paper printed a rumor that 3,000 U. S. troops are now guarding the Burma road to China.

The British believed Adolf Hitler is building up to another peace offensive in an attempt to split Britain and Russia and achieve better cooperation from the occupied countries of Europe.

Fierce Fights Rage On Moscow Front

LONDON —(AP)— Unusually fierce fighting was reported raging on the Moscow front today, with the Russians counterattacking on some sectors with strong tank forces and the Germans attempting to stem the advancing machine monsters with flame-throwers.

On other sectors of the front before the capital the Germans were reported on the offensive, and the Berlin radio stated that considerable ground had been won by the invaders near Moscow yesterday.

The Germans, however, acknowledged bitter Soviet resistance. On the Russian side, the official noon communique issued in Moscow simply told of fighting "on all fronts" during the night.

It appeared that the lines before Moscow were fluid, swaying almost from hour to hour as the two powerful armies applied and elaxed pressure.

Churchill Expected To Answer Critics

LONDON—(UP)—Parliamentary circles expressed belief today that Prime Minister Churchill would reply soon in the house of commons to questions on government policy posed by press agitation for a more determined war effort and by Joseph Stalin's implied appeal for more military assistance.

Expectations persisted that the government might be altered in response to criticism leveled at some cabinet members, though an informed quarter said recently that Churchill had no intention of making any major changes.

The possibility was discussed that Churchill might change his mind on the question of establishing a strongly-centralized ministry of production, with a probable change in office for minister of labor Ernest Bevin or for Lord Beaverbrook, minister of supply. Both have been reported suffering from asthma.

Consider Use of French Fleet

BERLIN —(UP)— Authorized German quarters said today that Germany in the near future might consent to use of the French fleet for convoying French food and other ships through the British blockade.

The statement was made by a spokesman in response to questions by foreign correspondents concerning the recent British seizure of five French food ships off South Africa. The vessels were, seized by the British contrabrand control while sailing from Madagascar to France under escort of a French sloop of war.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The navy today added the name of 1st Class Seaman Joseph Gustave Little of Brooklyn, N. Y., to the roster of men "lost in action" when the U. S. destroyer Reuben James was torpedoed and sunk.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and remember that "good manners" often prevent traffic accidents.

Those bare-legged school children may not know that they are inviting pneumonia—but their parents should.

Reminder—Time for anti-freeze in the radiator; winter lubrication and oil change, and a check-up of tires, brakes and lights.

Time To Plan Open Forum Series

ARRIVAL of November, and approach of winter, brings to mind that this is the season in which arrangements should be made, and plans announced, for open forum meetings such as have been held in Mansfield for the past several years.

Meetings of this kind, open to the public without admission charge, have heretofore been sponsored by co-operation of several civic clubs and the suggestion is offered that, for this season at least, there might be an advantage in more organizations joining in presenting a forum lecture series.

Considerable expense is involved in securing high grade talent for public meetings of this kind and Mansfield audiences should be privileged to hear the best available speakers on subjects of current interest—national and international.

While various club groups have opportunity to hear a speaker at each of their weekly meetings, it sometimes seems that at least an occasional one of these speakers should be given opportunity to appear before a much larger audience—as was the case when Grove Patterson, of Toledo, gave a talk recently at a joint meeting of two local clubs.

Town meetings and neighborhood discussion groups are a natural and important part of education in self-government and a well-informed public is essential to the successful operation of democracy.

Civic clubs, and other local organizations of various kinds, may well consider devoting a part of their activities to co-operating in financing and promoting a series of forum meetings in Mansfield this winter.

Materials Essential To Modern War

MANY people think of war in terms of men and weapons, but materials are no less important. Indeed, they might be put first in modern warfare.

The aggressors in this war started with a great quantity of trained manpower and weapons. But they were short of raw materials, and this deficiency has increased with the speed of their operations. They have naturally conquered some materials as they proceeded, but not enough to keep them going at the rate required in modern warfare. The Germans are now engaged in a frenzied drive to the southeast for oil, steel and other resources of the Black Sea and Caspian region, because that is the only way to keep their vast war machine going.

Meanwhile the democracies, thanks to their foresight during the period of world expansion and settlement which occurred mainly in the last century, are well supplied with materials. This group, tied together neatly as the "A-B-C-D" powers, includes America, Britain, China and the Dutch Indies.

The essential materials in their control include oil, tin, lumber, iron, chrome, manganese, copper, hemp, tungsten, jute, cotton and other products. And it is such materials, along with the qualities of the people owning them, that are counted on to save the world for human freedom and enlightenment in this darkest age that the modern world has experienced.

Council Protests Wooden Bridge

ONLY under protest did Mansfield city council act to accept a wooden bridge on North Main street—in preference to none.

Councilman Shultz was right in saying that "no one wants a wooden bridge, but if the county doesn't build a wooden bridge it wouldn't build any."

The statement, "no one wants a wooden bridge," may be a slight exaggeration, as apparently the county commissioners "want a wooden bridge" on this heavily traveled Mansfield thoroughfare—and it appears, by heck, that they're going to have it.

It is regrettable that Mansfield seems to have no other course than to permit this reminder of a past era to be foisted upon it—while modern bridges have been awarded some remote sections of the county . . . but what could council do—except protest, and feel ashamed?

Example In Neighborliness

THE LITTLE Dominican Republic has done more, considering its area and population, than any other country of the Western Hemisphere to meet the refugee problem in a practical way. And now former President Trujillo of that country has added to its good works by setting up a traveling scholarship at the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism. The winner, who will be chosen from the 1942 graduating class, will receive traveling expenses to and from the Dominican Republic and a position for one year on La Nacion, leading newspaper of Trujillo City.

Whether or not this gift is important as a scholarship, its value as a contribution to "good-neighborliness" cannot be denied. The graduate who goes to Trujillo City, his friends and relatives and a widening circle of acquaintances, are all destined to learn much about this small sister nation, its history and its hopes for the future.

Cranberry Becomes Versatile

SCIENTIFIC research has discovered a lot of new things to do with cranberries. Candles may be made from the smooth, solid wax found on the skins of the berries. Another by-product is an emulsifying agent which is expected to become of great value in manufacturing salad dressings, textiles, paper, and so on. A pure acid derived from the cranberry produces a fine powder well adapted to making fingerprints. From it has also been made an amber cream useful in healing burns. An oil used in lipstick, and plastics suitable for a variety of articles ranging from ash trays to shoes, are said to be procurable from cranberries.

This development, though in line with other scientific progress, must not be allowed to interfere with the first great mission of the cranberry, which is to accompany roast turkey as jelly or sauce and to be made into tarts and pie.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I ran into Harry Fink in the lobby of a Broadway hotel. "I'm going on the air in a few minutes," he told me. He was enthusiastic. The way he talked you would have thought Harry was some young beginner, getting his first break.

But Harry Fink is an old timer, as experience goes. Perhaps this will help you remember him. He wrote "The Curse Of an Aching Heart."

In the old days, Harry had a club on 45th street, where the Lobster is today. The original trimmings are still in the Lobster, a favorite dining place among people who are partial to sea food.

"I haven't seen you in my place lately," he said. Harry is the proprietor of the Club Samoa, in 52nd street. It is small but intimate. Its decor is South Seas. One of Harry's rivals is The Hurricane, another South Seas atmosphere club. I mention this because at one time Harry Fink owned the late Kaiser Wilhelm's yacht. It cost him $75,000. This yacht, which had entered many a regatta, was captured during the first World war by the British. When Fink acquired it he took it to Florida and set it up as a floating nightclub. It was the first of its kind America had seen. But the venture was short lived. A hurricane came out of the Caribbean one night and swept most of Southern Florida, including the Kaiser's yacht, away.

We stepped out into the street. Across the way the marquee lights of "The Hurricane" glittered and were merged with the lights on Broadway.

"Yes," Harry Fink sighed, "it was a hurricane that got me in Florida. From the looks of that yonder, it has followed me to New York."

MATTY MALNECK, among orchestra leader, conforms to no set pattern. Though quite willing to play any style of music you may desire, nothing on earth can keep him from suddenly switching to something of his own choice. During a conga session at the Rainbow Room the other night he swept suddenly into the William Tell Overture. Why? Well, there's something about the overture that he likes. He also likes the Flight of the Bumblebee, a piece which he has done well by. When he played it the other night he said suddenly to the audience, "Here we go, and I think my trumpet player is going to be in trouble." The bumblebee runs are fast enough to trouble any trumpet player.

MALNECK is one of those boys who seems partial to the west coast. He comes into New York to play a Broadway theater engagement or a nightclub engagement about twice each year. Usually he hits Chicago, going or coming. This time it will be going. But the rest of his time is utilized out there where people try to remember what rain looks like. Analyzing Malneck you come to no set conclusion. You wouldn't call him sweet, swing, or symphonic. You'll just have to call him Malneck.

A. F. Ramsey bought the Richard Ricketts home at 98 West Fifth street.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, Nov. 8, 1936.

Mary Shiplet, Kathryn Balliett and Leo Hans were soloists at a vesper service at the First Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baum celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary.

Arwilda Enders and Robert Honchell were married at the home of the bride's parents on West Fourth street.

C. H. Arter, 73, died at his home west of Mansfield.

Mrs. Edna Achy underwent an operation at Thomas hospital.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On Nov. 8, 1861, Mason and Slidell, commissioners from the Confederacy to Great Britain and France, were removed from the British steamer "Trent" by Captain Wilkes of the American sloop of war "San Jacinto." This was an outrage on the principle of inviolability of the vessels of neutral nations and the prisoners were consequently returned.

Daily Bible Thought

Praise ye the Lord. Blessed is the man that feareth the Lord, that delighteth greatly in his commandments. His seed shall be mighty upon earth: the generation of the upright shall be blessed. Wealth and riches shall be in his house: and his righteousness endureth for ever.—Psalms 112-1-3.

PROFIT BY EXPERIENCE

Plan Education In Civilian Morale

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The United States is preparing to go all out for boosting civilian morale with an elaborate network of information and discussion groups that will blanket the country's educational system from first grade to college seniors.

It is called the School and College Civilian Morale Service and its first objective is to establish "freedom's forums" in every community and classroom for a "free discussion" at regular intervals of all the problems now plaguing the nation and the world.

EVEN as this is being written, pamphlets on methods of participation are going out from the U. S. Office of Education to more than 1,700 college presidents; 18,000 school superintendents; 26,000 high school principals; 9,000 librarians and many civic organizations.

This latest development in trying to prepare the United States to face the world situation and national upheaval was born with the president. In September, he wrote Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, instructing him to ask U. S. Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker to "inaugurate an appropriate educational program designed to help students and adults in understanding the many complicated problems of these critical times."

In the ensuing two months, Studebaker, with the aid of McNutt, Civilian Defense Director Fiorello LaGuardia, a national advisory committee of 21 college presidents and other prominent educators, drew up the present preliminary outline of the school and college civilian morale service. Actually, it is a broad expansion of the public forums program started five years ago—but if present plans are carried out it will call for participation of millions of students and adults who have never taken part in any of the existing "study-discussion groups."

STUDEBAKER makes a point of the fact that there are no special funds appropriated for the new service. Thus, it will be established through a close cooperation of the Office of Education, which will act as advisor and organizational guide, and LaGuardia's Office of Civilian Defense, whose local defense councils and volunteer offices will provide much of the volunteer man power to get the ball rolling and keep it in motion.

Specifically, the plan is to set up in every public and private educational institution a civilion morale service. In elementary and high schools, the primary projects will be a greater emphasis in social studies on present day problems; to provide meeting places for adult "freedom's forums"; to promote attendance at these forums; to prepare charts, graphs, and other visual aids for discussions and lectures.

THE libraries, both public and school, will be asked to become "arsenals of facts and information" on all matters pertaining to democracy, dictatorships, world affairs and all phases of national defense.

The colleges and universities are to be allotted defined areas, for which they will be speaker bureaus, and centers of information and speaker training. These college centers of information and training will be asked to co-operate closely with speakers and discussion leaders within the area. And to these centers also will fall the task of raising their own budgets for carrying on the work.

The U. S. Office of Education, with funds from its regular budget, has prepared the pamphlets and booklets which will serve as organizational guides. Through the more than 1,700 college centers of information and training, it will serve as the focus and spark plug of the entire program.

It looks like the United States is in for a siege of speechmaking and discussion, the like of which hasn't been heard since the "4-Minute Men" took the field in the World war.

Dream Dope Addicts

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THOSE heart-breaking letters! Letters from hungry people, homeless people, idle, bitter, broken people. But of them all, the most tragic are from THE DREAMERS—from men and women, boys and girls, who've turned to dreams as an escape.

Hard times can do plenty of bad things to a human. Starve him, turn him vicious, drive him mad. But the most dreadful and lasting injury it can inflict is to TURN HIM INTO A DREAM ADDICT.

But dreams are pleasant things—they make life easy. How can they harm anyone? They harm because they ARE pleasant . . . because they DO make life easy. So easy that they gradually cut you off from all life—making you unable to face reality.

Do you know anything about dope addiction? Here's hoping you don't—and advising you never to learn. Dope addiction is the ghastliest hell on earth. There is no shame as awful, no suffering as dreadful. Then why do people become dope addicts? Because it's pleasant—it makes life easy.

Dope addicts aren't usually vicious people. They're worried people—tired, sick, sensitive, bewildered people. They mean well. They want to make good in life. But life's a tough baby to tackle—and they haven't what it takes. They go to pieces when the whistle sounds. And so—

They try to find something that will help—something that will steady their cowardice, strengthen their weakness. Dope does. For a little while. Dope makes them forget their handicaps. Wipes out all the rough spots in the picture. . . . Presently the poor addict can't face ANY difficulty without it.

Any contact with reality becomes torture—the touch of cold water on the shrinking skin, the touch of a brisk word on the shrinking spirit.

Dope turns a man into a rag. So do dreams—if they become an addiction. You can do with dreams exactly what you do with dope. Buck yourself up. Wipe out all the tough spots. Forget dreariness and discouragement—nagging monotony—criticism and competition . . . everything that may possibly end in humiliation or failure.

You can make life what you wish it to be WITHOUT ANY EFFORT ON YOUR PART when you're dreaming or when you're doped. And the process is so pleasing that presently you can't endure to face real life at all.

Cry babies, boasters, bullies, loafers—they're all dream addicts. If you could step into their secret thoughts you'd find them all gummed up with pretty day-dreams. They don't think those day-dreams are harmful. They don't believe that they have any connection with the rest of the world. But they have. They're the reason why they ARE failures.

"As a man thinketh so is he." If you duck all the rough stuff in your private thoughts, you'll also duck 'em in your public chores.

You can still win if depression makes you ragged, hungry, homeless, friendless. For you'll still have the makings of a fresh start in yourself. But look out for day-dreams! If they get you, you're SUNK!

Spread of Cancer Clinics.

An approved list of 376 cancer clinics this week by the American College of Surgeons. Nine years ago there were only 100. More than one quarter of the approved general hospitals with 100 or more beds in the United States and Canada are now on the list. This means that organized facilities for treating cancer have been made accessible to patients in every part of this country and the Dominion.

The importance of this increase in facilities is evident. In a very large percentage of cases cancer is curable if recognized early and given proper treatment by surgery, radium or X-rays. One of the sad consequences of the patronizing of quack cancer "cures" is the waste of valuable time, sometimes with fatal consequences. But with cancer clinics available physicians can obtain expert help in making early diagnoses and prescribing the necessary treatment. —Kansas City Star.

Submarines Raise Old Memories As War Draws Nearer to U. S.

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

SHADES of World war days are closing in on the North American continent. Before the U. S. entered that war German submarines put in at Atlantic harbors; afterwards they sank ships almost within sight of Block Island.

Wednesday the Canadian navy minister reported U-boats had been seen off the coast of Newfoundland and said one may have been sunk by a Canadian corvette. Informed Washington sources concluded Adolf Hitler intended to make the waters west of Iceland a major theater in the battle of the Atlantic.

German-American relations grew worse with Hitler's charge that the U. S. had "attacked Germany" in the cases of the destroyers Greer and Kearny and still worse with the attack on the Navy tanker Salinas.

Mother Wants Ship Armed.

As senate debate on Neutrality Act amendments roared toward a close, the only woman member, Senator Caraway (D-Ark.) mother of two sons in uniform, came out for revision because "It is a strange theory that our boys can be shot at without any means of defense."

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) leading the opposition, denounced President Roosevelt, however, for not invoking the Neutrality Act in the German-Russian war. He said FDR was playing power politics" with the law.

Late yesterday the senate voted 57 to 30 to amend the Neutrality Act.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt blanketed the coast guard into the navy and 17 American civilians were listed as killed while en route to join British non-combatant services.

Japan and Finland.

U. S.-Japanese relations stewed along, with Tokyo post-hasting a new diplomat, Saburo Kurusu, to Washington to talk over what it admitted was "a very serious situation." Informed Washington sources said the administration planned to hold congress in session indefinitely because of the Japanese crisis.

Secretary Hull told Finland that unless she withdrew from the Russian war she would forfeit this country's friendship. Finland, long on the best of terms with the U. S., sharply replied that the appeal was an effort to get Finnish troops away from the Murmansk-Moscow railroad, a route for British-American supplies.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Trouble.

"He who takes unto himself a wife takes unto himself trouble."

So ran an old saw long before the days when one out of sixteen marriage wound up in divorce.

Apparently this matter of matrimonial mishaps is an old human custom.

There are those of us—the very philosophically minded — who might be inclined to reflect that since man is indubitably born to trouble, it might as well be one thing as another, nature always compensating.

That, however, is aside from the present and pressing subject of this inquiry, which is speculation, conjecture, wonder, if you will, as to whether the maker of the old saw previously quoted was punning, knew his nuanaces, had his how it started in mind, when he picked on trouble as the conjoint of wife.

For the word trouble is rooted in the Latin turbula, meaning among other things, a little crowd.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Why Not Chart Life?

We plan so many things, why not
A way of living, too?
Why willy-nilly should we go
And no fixed path pursue?

We plan our pleasure and our work,
But few will chart a course
For life itself, come day, go day
They move and any force

Or wind or tale can turn them; few
Plan out a way to go,
Let nothing hinder them until
Fulfillment's dream they know.

Quotes

Luren D. Dickinson, former governor of Michigan and an anti-"high life" crusader: "If you must kiss red paint, shut your eyes and try it on the barn door."

Rep. Short (R., Mo.), comparing Wendell Willkie and FDR: "They talk alike . . . we're fed up on personal charm."

Dr. Russell Henry Stafford, president of Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions: "I have still to meet even an extreme pacifist who queries the right of our Chinese brethren to resist Japan."

People

Backscratcher Wins.

Last year Republican-American Labor-Fusionist Mayor LaGuardia of New York scratched President Roosevelt's back by campaigning for him for a third term. This year FDR scratched LaGuardia's back by over-riding other Democratic leaders and endorsing the black-sombreroed mayor for a third term too.

It was a touch-and-go election, but LaGuardia turned in a 133,000-vote victory over William O'Dwyer, Democratic district attorney of Kings county (Brooklyn).

Man With Convictions.

When it came time for the Rev. Paul D. Wright to deliver his sermon at Winton Congregational church in Rochester, N. Y., he arose and said he had heard that a deaconess proposed to hold a bingo party at her home.

"I do not propose to serve a bingo-playing church," said Mr. Wright—and resigned.

A Brush-Wagging Wag.

Ivan Albright went to the World war from art school. The medical corps put him to drawing pictures of shell wounds. His experience stayed with him, and now he paints varicose veins on some of his subjects. Other little tricks, such as the names he gives his paintings, have earned him the nickname of the "court jester of American art."

In 1931 Albright, a Chicagoan, bought a weather-beaten door at a junk yard. He hung a funeral wreath on it, painted a woman's hand reaching for the knob, called the picture "That Which I Should Have Done I Did Not Do." Last week-end it won a $500 prize.

At Home

America Arms.

OPM reported that production of airplane engines increased 88% the first nine months of 1941. Actual figures were kept secret, but OPM said enough engines were being turned out to power about 2,000 planes a month. In September, the last month reported, 1,914 planes were produced.

OPM also announced that the next aluminum drive will be turned over to the junk men. The last drive didn't work out so well because smelters were swamped with cleaning and sorting the metal—a job which the junk men will take care of next time.

The Ghost Walks Faster.

The Army, Navy and Marines want young men to make their careers in the armed services. One reason more haven't responded is that the pay is too low in comparison with civilian jobs. Now the three branches have presented congress a proposal to raise the pay of everyone from gob to general.

For example, under the bill Army privates and non-rated men in the Navy would be raised from $30 to $42 a month; first lieutenants and lieutenants, junior grade, in the Navy from $2,000 to $2,100 a year.

More Taxes Coming.

The government figures about $6,000,000,000 still should be taken out of circulation to prevent inflation—and it needs more cash to run the defense program, too.

So Treasury Secretary Morgenthau is working on a plan to increase your and the boss' contribution to social security and unemployment insurance. Other officials are preparing new and higher scales of income taxes (perhaps to be taken out of pay checks) and other taxes.

Abroad

Birthday Under Fire.

Battling Moscow celebrated Soviet Russia's 24th birthday by publishing slogans such as "Long live the U. S. A., which supports Great Britain and the Soviet Union." Indications were piling up that the Nazis were digging in for the Winter on the central front.

Stalin, in a rare speech, indirectly appealed to Britain to carry the war to Germany when he complained that Russia was fighting alone and was handicapped by the lack of a second front in Europe. He set Germany's total casualties at 4,500,000.

The Death Roll.

A summary made public in Berlin last week-end showed that at least 1,082 persons had been executed for defying the Nazis since Germany's war with Russia began June 22. In addition, the press from time to time had mentioned "several" taking the one-way trip, and reports continued to come in during the week. One said that 150 alleged Communists and Jews had been shot in Belgrade for attacks on two soldiers.

The Bread Line.

A newspaper in Lyon, France, questioned doctors in four leading cities of Unoccupied France. This is what the doctors said:

That the French, especially manual laborers and children, are losing their pep for lack of normal food supplies; that colds and lung trouble are increasing.

That most Frenchmen have to sleep two hours longer to make up for short rations.

That rich people are somewhat better off because they can't get the rich foods that used to give them dyspepsia and gout.

Science

"Foster Mothers."

Imagine sewing two pieces of cigaret paper together, edge to edge, without crinkling them. Dr. Michael J. Bennett of Philadelphia told the Pan-American Homeopathic Medical congress that an operation as delicate as that had made possible the birth of more than 20 babies.

The operation is the transplanting of an ovary from a normal woman to one whose overies do not function properly. "There is no guarantee of results in babies," Dr. Bennett said. "Results, however, have been very gratifying."

An Ill Wind . . .

At a meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons, General Charles R. Reynolds said: "As much as I hate Hitler, I must give him credit for indirectly improving the health of the American people. Every mother, father, child, relative and acquaintance of a man examined for service is checked if the man shows up with a communicable disease."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

STINGY AND GENEROUS

TRYING to be economical of your honor cards, to avoid wasting them, is fine policy a good deal of the time. Being just the other way, generously sticking in an honor when you know it can't win, in order to force a high card from your opponent, is just as important at the right spot. Doing this is particularly vital when playing from touching honors, using the play called "splitting your honors." Fine players figure out pretty keenly when to go to one extreme and when to stick to the other.

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT

If ever a pair gave a fine example of the wrong use of the principles stated, it was East and West on this deal. The diamond 4 was led to the K and the J came back, covered by the Q and A, whereup the diamond 9 was led to the 10, setting up the 8 for West. So far so good. The club Q was finessed and the spade 8 led. Mistake No. 1 was in West playing his 2 instead of splitting his J-10 and playing the 10 to force a high one. He put on the 2, whereupon South called the 6 from dummy, letting the 8 ride to the K.

Now it was East's turn to go wrong. Ignoring the dangerous chance that South might have the heart 9, East led the heart Q. When dummy took that with the K, a perfect tenace was built over the J. It covered the 10 lead, and the A killed it, setting up the 9. It now became West's turn to slip again when the spade 5 was led. Instead of the 10, he put on his 7 and the 9 won as the result of his terrible play. The spade A and Q, club J and A and the heart 9 finished the hand, making 4-No Trumps.

At another table of the same duplicate, when the spade 8 was led to the fifth trick, West used the 10 to force the Q, the K winning East did not return a heart, but the spade 4 to the 5, J and A, and the 9 won, setting up West's 7. The club 9 was covered by the K and A, the club J won and then the heart K and A. South could do nothing then but lead to West, whose spade 7 and diamond 8 took the last two tricks, setting the contract.

Your Week-End Lesson.

If you decide to lead one of two four-card suits, neither of which had been bid, against a contract of 3-No Trumps, when would you select the weaker one in preference to the stronger one, and why? Can you give several examples of hands containing two four-card suits, some of which call for a lead of the weaker suit and some the stronger?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"DON'T WORRY another second about Mrs. Underwood's being left to fend for herself in that restaurant," I told Lillian's anxious nurse. "You know as well as I that I could give her no adequate protection. But when my father knows of this latest demand by wire—that she come alone—he will evolve a scheme which will insure not only that we both will be as safe as if we were here, but also that the gangsters shall have a chance to make contact with Lillian and give her the massage they wish to get over."

"I thought that would be the way of it," she said, "but I'm so glad to know for certain that she will be in no danger."

"And I'm so glad to have your assurance about her condition," I told her warmly. "It solves a puzzling problem for me."

Madge Relieved.

"It will be perfectly all right for you to leave her, after you have eaten this meal we are preparing," she told me smiling.

"Please ask them to come now," the nurse said, not taking her eyes from her concoction, and I went to the door of the bedroom and knocked, entering almost immediately upon Harry Underwood's resonant "Come in."

I found the big man seated in a chair admirably suited to his massive frame, cradling his wife in his arms as if she were a frightened child.

"We knew your knock," Harry said, "and we don't mind you seeing us in a third act clinch. Look up, Sweet! I have a hunch this dame has an imperative summons for us. I can see it in her eyes."

"Miss Whitlock wishes you to come into the other room immediately," I told them. "She has something cooking which must be eaten almost at once."

With his wife in his arms—and Lillian is by no means a victim of anemia—the big man rose easily from the chair, and put her on her feet in front of him.

"Come on, Sweet," he said, grasping her hand and tucking it under his arm, "let's obey the summons. Madge, may I offer you the other arm?"

But I was already at the door.

"I'm assistant chef," I said, "and I must attend to my duties."

Lillian Eats Heartily.

The omelette was delicious, a real culinary creation, while the coffee was hot, clear and strong, with plenty of thick cream. The other viands measured up satisfactorily, and Harry, Lillian, Miss Whitlock and I did full justice to the meal.

Then the nurse put Lillian on the couch, signalled her husband to sit beside her, and with my help cleared the table. It was when we both left the room with our trays of dishes for the kitchen, that she put a tense question to me.

"Isn't there some way you could get her away from this house for awhile?" she asked. "She needs work to do, and she has nothing to do here save watch for the mail and listen for the telephone."

CHAPTER XVII

Buck McMurray, Paradise Ranch owner and one of the seven men who were trustees of Frontier university, announced the deer hunt the day after the masquerade.

"Miss Joy, ma'am," he grinned happily at Polly's guest, "you look over our rifles and take yore pick. I aim for you to get the biggest buck in the Bradshaw mountains."

"Oh, swell! Thank you, Mr. McMurray!"

"Yes'm. And your Miss Carlson, I invited her. And Dr. Palmer. I want him to get around the back country more. Ward and Polly will see to it you get explained everything. Now—"

"Ken Palmer going?" Joy asked.

"Who? Oh, the boy. Why, if you young folks want him."

"Ken would love it," Joy assured him.

Polly and Ward exchanged glances, but Ward immediately spoke up for Ken, too. Polly made no comment.

Date of the hunt was Friday. A week-end out would not interfere with school affairs. Anticipation grew in all the party as the starting hour approached.

They rode in one touring car and one station wagon, the latter having abundant room for camp duffel and for bringing home the venison, if any.

"It's so quaint," Joy Boone told them.

"What is, ma'am?" Buck McMurray asked.

"Everything! The — trip. I've never been on a deer hunt before. The red coats and hats we have to wear. The camp things. The adventure."

"You're just a dude being initiated," he warned, genially. "Look out we don't mistreat you. You and Miss Carlson and Doc Palmer. And young Ken. My own younguns are part wild from birth."

* * *

They made camp on a high granite mountain. Slender aspen stood like sentinels with fingers shaking constantly in the breeze. Their silver trunks framed a landscape of lesser mountains extending at least 100 miles. Ground here was carpeted with gold and crimson—leaves from the "quakies" and from the sugar maples nearby. Splashes of darker green were firs in Christmas-like profusion. Lush underbrush showed down the slopes.

"It's magnificent!" Bettina Carlson breathed, in tribute. Dr. Palmer spoke agreement.

"Best deer country in the west," their host said. "Now we got a snug little camp set up here. Fire wood in. Water in the spring there. Air cold, but not too cold. Everything set. We'll cook up some grub and sleep on it, then get an early start come dawn. Deer go to water about daybreak then browse for a while. We ought to connect sure."

Dinner was cooked over the open fire by the three McMurrays.

"I'll cook the breakfast," Ken Palmer volunteered.

Mr. McMurray, sr., looked approvingly at him. "Thank you, son. You'll fit in out here in this country, I can see. Willing to do your part. Now you just ask any questions you need to. And roust us out to help in the morning, if you want."

Sleep was in bed rolls right down on mother earth. That itself was an experience for the four easterners. Bettina Carlson, Joy and Polly changed to pajamas in the privacy of the station wagon, but the men merely pulled off their hunting boots and their coats. The night air was frosty when every one turned in.

"Just put the canvas flap right on over yore heads," Mr. McMurray explained. "Your bed rolls are water and wind proof, but enough air will seep in the cracks to breathe."

"I won't sleep a wink!" Bettina Carlson protested.

Her prediction went awry, however. Approximately five minutes after she said that, seemingly, Ken Palmer was calling them to breakfast. Even Miss Carlson confessed she had heard nothing, seen nothing, felt nothing but extraordinary comfort for eight consecutive hours. Daybreak air was cold but exhilirating.

Ken had fried bacon and potatoes, boiled some dried apricots, made a pot of coffee, and—with Ward McMurray's help — made dutch oven biscuits. Ward had gotten up to give tactful assistance on Ken's first outdoor meal.

"It is astonishing how good this is, and how much one can eat!" Dr. Palmer exclaimed, squatting for a second re-fill of his plate.

Polly was gazing raptly at Ken. He didn't have to be told many things. Camp routine, after all, is largely a matter of common sense. Ward did but little coaching. The two boys appeared to be enjoying the work immensely. Polly watched the power with which Ken swung an axe, cutting firewood under Ward's instruction. Ken had rolled up his sleeves despite the icy morning, and looked like a handsome young god there at work on the high mountain side. Polly felt again the misery of yearning. This was intensified when she noted the proud look on Joy as the blond girl watched Ken too.

"All right, folks," Mr. McMurray boomed after dishes were done. "Time to get moving. I'll take the two grownups. You four kids better split up, dang it, or you'll talk and laugh too much to get any deer. Scare all the game off the mountain. Polly, you take young Palmer there, ch?"

"Me? Take Ken, daddy?"

"Sure. You been guiding him everywhere for a month anyhow. Been teaching him to ride and shoot and dance and throw a rope—damm if he ain't become practically a rope expert, Dr. Palmer! I watched Sis and him one morning. You ought to be proud of the way he catches on to things. Polly cottoned to him right off and took him under her wing. He—"

Her genial dad talked on, but Polly's mouth had dropped open in surprise. She glanced at Joy—and met Joy's gaze bang on!

"I—I—" Polly tried to speak.

Joy Boone was frowning a trifle angrily. Mr. McMurray had talked too much! And was still going.

"Son, you better look out for girls, let me tell you," he grinned at young Ken now. "My Polly's likely to set her cap for you seriously and if she does — you're sunk. She gets everything she goes after." He paused to chuckle. "Out teaching you to rope — ha! Look out, or she'll rope you in! She—"

"Daddy! For Pete's sake!" Polly shrieked at him.

The older folks all laughed, and even Polly and Ward had to pretend amusement, knowing their dad at least meant well. This was his idea of teasing.

But as Ward McMurray and Joy walked off together with their guns a few minutes later, Ward tried to smooth matters out. He had seen the reactions on Joy's face.

"You don't want to pay attention to dad," Ward assured her. "He just likes to hear himself talk."

Joy was a little severe. "I'm sure I don't know what you mean."

That act didn't get across, though. Ward looked glumly ahead. "Yes you do. You live on the range where I live, Joy, you get to notice everything, every little detail. You get to study people's eyes and all. Now I know things. I see the way you're sold on Ken. Back at home. At school. The dance All the time. You are sold on him . . .

She didn't deny it. She just walked beside him, ever so serious.

"What about Polly?" she asked then. "If she—if Ken and she have been together a lot, and—"

"Well, wouldn't it be natural? Sis isn't any mud fence to look at, either! Now I don't mean—"

"But, Ward!" Joy spoke almost vehemently. Ward looked close. And all at once—without any tangible reason—a crumb of renewed home was born in the young ranch man.

The dainty person beside him was so exquisitely beautiful, so overwhelmingly so that the fierce longing for her surged within him again, and he dared to think he might have a chance!

"I don't know a thing about their business," he avowed. "But I do see things. It happens that Sis was the first girl he met after coming to Phoenix. They banged into each other there on the Administration building steps one day, they told; a sort of head-on collision. That was the day you brought all the excitement in your plane. Well, Sis and Ken naturally got along pretty well.

This year high rate is 17.6 mills and the low is 9.2, as compared with last year's high 17.80 and low of 9 mills.

Greatest increases in rates are noted in Polk township school district in Jefferson township where the rate is jumped from 7.2 to 9.1 due to the withdrawal of state school aid. A 2.3 mill increase is found in the New Washington village due to the three-mill levy voted for operation of the corporation. Whetstone rural district taxpayers will find its rate reduced three mills due to the expiration of its debt. An increase in the Sycamore school district of 2.3 mills is due to the destruction of the school by fire a year ago.

THEATERS

Hilarious Comedy.

Base on a $10,000 bet that a young stockholder can tell the unvarnished truth for 24 hours, Bob Hope's starring picture "Nothing But the Truth," opens today at the Ohio. Although his business partners, played by Edward Arnold and Glenn Anders, contend that it is impossible to tell the truth in business and still remain solvent, Hope practices his theory to the amazement of all concerned. Paulette Goddard plays the girl who gives him the money he uses for the bet and the cast includes Rose Hobart.

Romantic Theme.

When a scientific young woman discovers that beauty plays a part in winning a man she turns on the charm in "Our Wife," the gay comedy at the Madison, starring Ruth Hussey, Melvyn Douglas and Ellen Drew. Ruth Hussey plays the young woman in question and Ellen Drew, the wife ready to divorce Douglas until she learns the former down and out band leader has had a change of luck. Charles Coburn and John Hubbard are also in the cast. "Texas," turbulent drama of the struggle between the early ranchers and renegade bands of cattle rustlers, is the co-attraction. William Holden, Glenn Ford and Claire Trevor top the cast.

Hardy Picture.

"Life Begins For Andy Hardy," starring Mickey Rooney, opens Sunday at the Ritz. In this last of the popular Hardy picture series Andy goes to the city to try his luck before deciding on college or a business career. Judy Garland is featured also Lewis Stone in the role of "Judge Hardy." Gene Autry's new picture, "Down Mexico Way," is the co-attraction.

Nautical Comedy.

"Sailors On Leave," William Lundigan's picture showing at the Park, depicts the lighter side of life with the armed forces. The story places Lundigan as a woman-shy sailor at the mercy of an army of waterfront beauties who have been coached in their roles by Cliff Nazarro and Chick Chandler, pals of the sailor. This bit of strategy is prompted by a previous frame-up in which the duo promised the sailor he would inherit $25,000 provided he married before his 27th birthday. Shirley Ross and Jean Kean are in the cast. Adventure, strife and comedy run through "Jungle Cavalcade," Frank Buck's picture showing as the second attraction.

Air Thriller.

"Devil Dogs of the Air," co-starring James Cagney and Pat O'Brien opens Sunday at the Majestic. "That Uncertain Feeling," is the second picture.

idents emergency fact-finding commission, members of whom were called the "five wrong men," accompanied the general chairmen's decision to strike. Their statement, forwarded to the president, said:

"Railroad employes who are entitled to a square deal and a decent increase regard the recommendation of a 7½ per cent temporary pay bonus . . . as an insult (the board's recommendations said wage increase at this time should be considered 'temporary.')

"They say that it reflects no credit whatever on the five wrong men who sent the report to the president, and it is wholly unacceptable to men who have served faithfully and who have waited patiently since 1938 for wage recognition."

Dr. Wayne L. Morse, head of the president's commission, said that the board will not re-convene except at the call of the president.

The Association of American Railroads, through John J. Pelley, indicated to the president that the board's recommendations would be satisfactory to railroad management, although they would add $270,000,000 a year to the railroad's payrolls.

General chairman of the fourteen non-operating railroad unions are scheduled to assemble 1,200 strong in Chicago next Wednesday to decide their course on the board's recommendations.

For the 900,000 non-operating employes, the board recommended wage increases of 9 cents an hour—an average of 13½ per cent. They had asked increases of 30 to 36 cents an hour.

Six-day paid vacations were recommended for all employes.

Ondov Comes Back to City, This Time In Preaching Role

at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow, it will be almost like a homecoming for "Mike." He still regards Mansfield as a "second home" and says he will never forget the help he received from individuals and organizations while he was in General hospital.

After a News-Journal told the story of his misfortune, members of the Presbyterian Missionary society at Lexington started a campaign to raise funds for treating his injuries. Soon other organizations and individuals in the Mansfield area, led by Lutheran churches, joined the movement. More than $3,000 was raised, contributions coming from churches, clubs, and individuals in several states, according to Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church and treasurer of the "Mike" Ondov fund.

"Mike" underwent a delicate operation on his spine which helped to regain use of his right leg. His left leg still troubles him and he has never been able to discard his brace and crutches. "Mike" still believes, however, that he will walk normally again some day.

Young Ondov has his heart set on becoming a chaplain in a hospital or a public institution. For three months during the past summer he worked in the Pennsylvania hospital, Philadelphia, with five other clinical chaplains.

HEADS ASHLAND COUNTY COUNCIL

V. B. Moffett Elected to Serve as Chairman of Nutrition Group.

ASHLAND — V. B. Moffatt, superintendent of Ashland county schools, has been named chairman of the Ashland County Nutrition council.

Moffett was chosen chairman at a meeting held at the court house with representatives from county schools, county P.T.A.'s health departments, home extension department, county commissioners, grocers and dairies, hospital, and relief agencies present.

Organization of the Ashland county council is in keeping with the national and state program for the formation of these councils for the purpose of co-ordinating the activities of all agencies capable of improving nutrition.

The council will probably consist of ten members, according to Moffett. After these members have been named it is planned to hold a meeting every two weeks.

A speakers' bureau will be organized from present and former home economics teachers, dietitions, doctors, dentists and others who will donate their services in the nutrition education program.

At the preliminary organization meeting Miss Jane E. Gorsuch, nutritionist of the state department of health, was the speaker.

Tygers' Title Hopes Go Glimmering on Scoreless Tie

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Are our boys mudders, or are they mudders?

The Tygers have played in the mud so often this year, and liked it, that their favorite song is now: "Oink, Oink, boogly, woogly piggy."

They were right at home in the Stadium field ooze last night. In spite of the fact that nearly 8,000 fans were on hand to see the scoreless tie between Mansfield and Canton McKinley, there was more rooting on the field than in the stands. Oink, oink.

* * *

"Here's mud in your eye," laughed the heartless but shivering wretches in the stands as the Tygers came out of each play with great gobs of ooze in the optics.

But big Tom Harris, the Canton fullback, was the only guy on the field who wanted to play piggy-back. When the Tygers left him no rooting space, he just hopped on top and rode.

It ain't true. When the Tygers gathered in their huddles between plays, they weren't singing: "Why don't we do this more often, just what we're doing tonight?"

The finest scholastic football programs in the state of Ohio made fine seat cushions for many of the nearly 8,000 fans in the stands last night.

They paid a dime to sit on the Tygers' picture, as the empty stands after the game gave evidence. But the best seating arrangement I noticed was a copy of Life with a lovely doll turned up. I wonder who had that seat.

* * *

That's no kid about the Mansfield program being the best in the state. It's better than many big time colleges put out. Mansfield fans haven't seen anything like it on their trips this fall, and neither have Mansfield scouts who have covered a lot of territory during the season.

Vern Hoffman and the "M" association can take a bow on that publication.

* * *

And lest we forget. Harry Mehock has just set a record for short terms in the Mansfield. One week as coach of Johnny Appleseed! And what reforms did you inaugurate, Mr. Mehock?

Massillon Trims Toledo

Fremont Nips Norwalk, Willard Takes Galion.

Massillon Washington high continued on its unbeaten way today after spanking the once mighty Toledo Waite, 39-7, last night at Massillon. Topping Waite's seven points in the first quarter with 12, the Massillon team added 20 more points in the third quarter and 7 in the last.

Meanwhile Fremont Ross was dropping Norwalk 33-0, Canton Lincoln walked over Bucyrus 25-8 and Willard's Crimson Flashes trampled Galion 19-0.

Playing with subs for most of the game Fremont still managed to tally in every period but the third with feature runs being made by Capt. Bob Hall and Fullback Eddie Fox.

In the Bucyrus game Jack Tremelling, Canton star, repeated what seven other teams have done this season and scored three times to beat the Bucyrus team.

* * *

Junior Whisler led the Willard barrage against Galion, scoring personally twice and recovered a blocked Galion punt to set up the other score.

Bob Pastor Drubs Beckwith In Bout

CHICAGO—(AP)—Booker Beckwith's all-victorious march toward fistic fame came to an abrupt end last night.

* * *

The veteran Bob Pastor, who fought Champion Joe Louis twice and lived to tell the tale, gave the 21-year-old Gary, Ind., negro a solid beating in a 10-round bout at Chicago stadium.

* * *

Beckwith almost floored Pastor in the first round with a left hook and right cross, but the 27-year-old New Yorker weathered this barrage and then went to work. Pastor weighed 182, Beckwith 168½.

Buck Club Waits for Wisconsin

Both Teams Have Tough Offense, Weak Defense.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State's once-beaten Bucks, bidding for a temporary third place rating in the Western Conference football struggle, clashed with Wisconsin's "in-and-out" Badgers today, with 60,000 fans sitting in on what had all the earmarks of a two-way scoring spree.

* * *

The Ohioans, with an even split in two league starts, are fourth place, while the Badgers are all alone in the "show" spot with two victories and a defeat in the loop. An Ohio win would elevate the Bucks to the third rung, and shove the Badgers down among the also-rans.

* * *

The rival coaches, Paul E. Brown of the Bucks, and Harry Stuhldreher of the Badgers—both of whom played their scholastic football at Massillon high school—called on sophomore talent to bring home the bacon. The Badgers spotted six sophomores in the starting lineup, while the Bucks had four.

Both teams boast high-geared offenses and leaky defenses, leading to the impression that a high-scoring tilt might result as the rival coaches—performing before some 10,000 fans from Massillon, and the town's high school band—planned to "shoot the works."

* * *

Each squad has scored in all five of its contests, and each has been able to blank only one opponent. Offense of each club is built around the fullback, with Jack Graf doing the punting, passing and plunging for the Bucks, and Pat Harder, sensational sophomore and the conference's No. 1 scorer, doing the same for the invaders.

COACH NAMES SON FOR SCORING FOOTBALL BACK

CLEVELAND— (U.P.) —Coach Tommy Welbaum of Bedford high school has a name for his infant son, thanks to Halfback Jim Parks who scored the only touchdown as Bedford lost to Mayfield, 14-6, yesterday. Welbaum, a former Ohio State athlete, promised to name his son for the first Bedford player to score. So, it's—Jim Welbaum.

Bexley Lions Beaten, 13-7

List of Unbeaten High Schools Drops One More.

(By International News Service)

Downfall of Bexley's Lions, champions of the Central Buckeye league at the hands of a persistent nemesis from Washington C. H., reduced the ranks of Ohio's undefeated teams at least once last night.

The 13-7 setback was Beckley's first loss in 15 games dating back to the final game of 1939, when Washington C. H. again turned the trick, 13 to 0. Also, Bexley's only tie during the 15-game period came in the closing game of 1940, a scoreless deadlock—with, you guessed it, Washington C. H.

Elsewhere in the state, early returns showed the unbeaten parade marching along with unfaltering step. Canton Lehman rolled to a 37-0 victory over Akron Garfield for its eighth in a row.

* * *

Also recording victories No. eight without defeats or tied were Portsmouth East, which wound up Thursday by defeating Portsmouth Central, 6 to 0; Wyoming, 13-0 winner over North College Hill; Logan, triumphant by a 33-0 count over Wellston and Miffling which crushed Ohio Deaf, 63 to 0. Wyoming, by winning, finished the season unbeaten, untied and unscored on.

* * *

Among the teams which are undefeated but tied, Massillon chalked up victory No. 7 by swamping Toledo Waite, 39 to 7 and Cincinnati Withrow pounded out a 33-0 victory over Woodward.

* * *

Mansfield, holder of a tie game with Massillon, battled to another draw, this time a scoreless affair with Canton McKinley, one of the state's once-defeated combines. Steubenville Central Catholics scored its sixth triumph against only one tie by humbling Columbus Aquinas, 33 to 0.

Ohio Squads Close Season

29 Grid Teams Take to Field In Last Big Day.

(By Associated Press)

Twenty-nine Ohio college football teams took to the gridiron today—the last "big" football Saturday of the year for Buckeye fandom.

Only 48 games remain on the state's 1941 pigskin program, and 19 of these were up for decision today. One eleven — Case — has emerged unbeaten and untied in the 146 contests involving Ohio teams to date.

Topping today's program was the Ohio State-Wisconsin Big Ten clash at Columbus, but several all-Ohio contests also rated as standout attractions.

Case, in one of seven Ohio conference tilts on the card, tangled with Baldwin Wallace at Berea, and Wittenberg, beaten last Saturday for the first time in its last 16 games, attempted to start another victory string against once-beaten and once-tied Bowling Green at Springfield.

Outside the conference, Ohio Wesleyan met Ohio university in a tussle climaxing a centennial celebration at the Delaware school.

The state was assured at least one unbeaten eleven in 1941 as Youngstown college's Penguins wound up their season last night with a 19-0 victory over the Akron university zippers.

The only other Ohio eleven in action last night—Rio Grande—also kept its record "clean," losing 47 to 0 to West Liberty Teachers at Huntington, W. Va., for its seventh straight defeat this season. The Rio Granders haven't won a game since 1937.

CHICAGO— (AP) —Joey Pirrone of Cleveland was knocked out by Marcellina Borrado of Mexico City last night in the third round of a scheduled eight-round boxing match.

Touchdown Tactics

By BERNIE BIERMAN
Minnesota Football Coach.

THE SITUATION: Your team is kicking off to an opponent notoriously dangerous for long runbacks of kickoffs. Their safety man is on his own 5-yard line with the rest of the team deployed in the usual formation for receiving. If you were directing the kicker in such a situation,

WHAT WOULD YOU TELL HIM?

1. Kick the ball high, in front of the safety to allow your ends to get down under the kick?
2. Kick low along the ground to another receiver than the safety?
3. Kick out of bounds and automatically give the opponents the ball on their 35?
4. Kick over the goal line?

(Answer in Tomorrow's Paper.)

YESTERDAY'S PROBLEM
By CARL G. SNAVELY
Cornell Univ. Football Coach.

THE SITUATION: Your team has the ball on your own two-yard line, second down, ten yards to go, ten minutes to play, and you are leading in the score 6-0. The game has been close and even all the way, your kicking is fair in all departments. There are no unusual weather conditions and the field is in good shape.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

ANSWER

I would suggest that you call for a fake kick and run from regular deep punt formation. I believe that such a play would be sound for the following reasons: The opponents will expect you to kick and are likely to try rushing your kicker to such an extent that a fake kick here would have an excellent chance of working for a substantial gain. If such a gain is made, you are out of the hole. No intricate ball handling is required and if your deepest back should fumble the ball, he should have time to recover it. If the runner is thrown behind the goal line, the opponents score a safety but in return your team will have the privilege of a free kick-off from the 20-yard line, which should enable you to force the opponents back beyond mid-field and you still will be leading by almost as safe a margin as you had when the score was 6-0.

Navy, Irish Ranked Even

Squads Wait Opening Whistle In Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md. —(INS)— A smoothly conditioned Navy eleven and the Irish of Notre Dame, engaging in their momentous clash at Baltimore, today drew an audience estimated at 66,800.

The teams were so closely matched that, for the first time in their 15-year rivalry, the Middies were ranked even-stephen with the aggregation from South Bend.

Clear and cool weather, which was forecast for the afternoon, favored the Irish aerial attack which was completely checked by Army's alert defense and general mud last week. Whatever edge Notre Dame had in the air, however, appeared checkmated by Navy's potent rushing.

Coach Swede Larsen spent the entire week drilling the Middies on offensive performance.

Plans at Annapolis called for a two-team arrangement of the Middies attack. It was evident that Larsen would rely on ample reserve strength to smash the Irish into submission.

Each team has won five games and each has played a scoreless tie. The Navy was dead-locked by Harvard and the Irish were held on even terms by Army.

Coach Frank Leahy predicted that the Irish would bounce back from the Army game in in fine form.

"This team has the courage," Leahy said. "Perhaps Navy will be too much for us, but don't think we will ever quit."

Mansfield and Canton Battle In Mud, Snow

Each Team Reaches Opponents' 21 Yard Line; Crider Injured

By REX HESS, News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD HIGH'S mud-soaked Tygers are still undefeated today, but their hopes for state championship recognition went glimmering last night on a scoreless tie with Canton McKinley's Bulldogs in the rain and snow and ankle-deep ooze of Stadium field.

It was no night for football as nearly 8,000 shivering fans who sat through a driving snowstorm will testify. The weather and the mud proved the best defense for both teams, and to win, either team would have had to be just plain lucky.

* * *

Fast-stepping halfbacks, sharp-shooting pass heavers, intricate ball handling and trick plays were automatically ruled out by the weather conditions, and all the two teams had left was power. And even the power plant was short-circuited by the mud.

Neither the Tygers nor the Bulldogs ever made a serious scoring threat. Each team reached its opponents' 21 yard line in the second period by taking advantage of breaks in the game, but neither club looked like it might pull a touchdown play out of the bag.

Mansfield got its chance when a bad pass from center prevented Jack Crider from getting away a punt deep in his own territory on fourth down, and he was tackled as he ran the ball back to the 24 yard line. Krupp picked up two yards and Jones one, but Mansfield lost six on the next play and with fourth down and three to go the Tygers elected to play it safe and sent Condon into the line for two yards.

Shortly afterward Canton recovered a Tyger fumble on the Mansfield 34, and the Bulldogs battered their way to a first down on the 23. But in four more plays they picked up only two yards, and that ended all scoring threats for the evening.

* * *

In the first half each team chalked up two first downs. The second half saw Canton getting six first downs and Mansfield none, but all of the Bulldogs' first downs were marked up deep in their own territory, one series of three starting from their four yard line, and another of two beginning from the same point, where Canton had been pushed back by Bob Winbigler's accurate punting.

Canton lost the services of the sensational Crider for the rest of the season when the fleet Bulldog halfback was injured in the third period.

At first it was feared he had a broken leg. He was carried from the field and taken to General hospital for an X-ray examination, and it was found he had suffered a torn ligament in the knee, the same injury that forced Adam Brandt, Mansfield fullback, out of action in the Massillon game. Crider was to be dismissed from the hospital today.

Big Tom Harris, 190-pound line-smashing fullback, and little Tony Domonic, who replaced Crider in the backfield, were the stars for McKinley, while Joe Romano, Paul Dietzel, Bill Doolittle and Duke Weber played a great defensive game for the Tygers, and the rest of the team wasn't far behind in that department.

* * *

Doolittle and Weber recovered three Canton fumbles during the evening. Mansfield lost the ball on fumbles twice, but only one proved costly, giving Canton its only scoring chance.

GAME MOVED UP

Principal Glenn Rohleder of Mansfield high school announced today that the Tygers' game with Shelby, scheduled at Stadium field next Saturday afternoon, has been moved up to Friday night at 8 o'clock at the suggestion of the Shelby school.

"With the hunting season opening Saturday, and with Ohio State's homecoming game Shelby suggestion was well received here," Rohleder said. Shelby officials believe more of their fans will be able to follow the team here Friday night than on Saturday.

Probably the fastest of all swimmers, the sail fish, has been timed by a stop watch at 68 miles an hour, and can soar 40 feet across the surface when he unfurls his sail and takes to the air. He is very much streamlined when his sail is lowered into the slot in his back.

This pheasant surely paid for his wheat! The crop of a 6-weeks-old pheasant examined in Ohio in September contained 45 Japanese beetles, 14 kernels of corn and 9 seeds of squirrel-tail grass.

"The Dancing Girl" is a Panamanian orchid so rare that only three have ever been found. It's center is shaped like a little brown dancing girl, with yellow skirt, whirling on her toes.

Rabbit and pheasant season opens just one week from today, and scores of hunters are already all set for the opening day. In case YOU are not . . . better drop in at Yuncker's, and choose the things you'll need, from a stock so complete that you can find everything you require, except your dog.

Fred D. Hodgson, park ranger of Glacier Park, Montana, paused when on patrol to fish one of the back-country lakes, hoping to have fish for supper instead of canned beans. He caught two nice rainbows which he put in his creel and left on shore while he waded out to coax another. Hearing slobbering sounds he turned in time to see a large black bear gobbling the last of his trout. The fish-eating bruin followed him on his rounds for two more days, hoping the ranger would go fishing again.

Out in Wyoming, Tex Reese tied the pelt of a coyote he had killed to his back to leave his hands free. A bullet whizzed past, then another and another. Reese ducked behind a tree, yanked off the pelt, raised his red hunting cap and finally by yells and whistles halted the fire of other hunters.

Ever hear of a fish getting medical treatment? That's what happened to some Washington state steelheads. Cut off from spawning grounds by new dams, they're caught and trucked to hatcheries, stripped of eggs, and released. To prevent handling injuries from causing fungus growths, the fish are painted with antiseptic, sometimes even put to sleep with ether before treatment.

Remember those good old-fashioned turkey shoots? The Charles Mill Sportsman's Club is sponsoring one starting at 9 a. m. Sunday, Nov. 9th, on the grounds of the Muzzle Loaders Gun Club, two miles west of Mansfield, on Route 30. Competitors may vie for the prizes of turkeys, ducks and chickens, with both muzzle loaders and modern weapons. A trap shoot is also included.

New London Loses To Wellington, 12-7

NEW LONDON — Wellington high school capitalized on two blocked punts here yesterday to dampen festivities at the New London Dad's day observances, 12-7.

Cassell, Wellington right end, accounted for the first score when midway through the first period he blocked Haas' punt on the New London 10 and from there McKisson went over.

Second score came in the second quarter when another punt was blocked on the New London 25. McKisson scored this time also on a running play.

Only New London score came in the final period when Jimmy Walters, Wildcat passing star, threw five completed passes advancing the ball to the Wellington two-yard-line from where Walters ran over. Shire Robinson kicked the extra point.

It's Squirrely, But Rodent Hates Picture Taking, It Seems.

GOLDSBORO, N. C.—(AP)—Gwendolyn is a squirrel. For years she's called daily at the window of the Wayne county tax collector for peanuts and what not. Finally Homer Ball decided to snap her picture. He got the photograph all right—but Gwen scampered away and hasn't been seen for lo, these several days.

FLIES TODAY

World's Biggest 'Air Boat' Joins U. S. Navy.

BALTIMORE, Md. —(U.P.)— The world's largest flying boat—the navy's new 67-ton, four-engine patrol bomber—slips down the ways today at the Glenn L. Martin plant here in colorful ceremonies heretofore reserved for surface vessels.

The huge aerial "battleship," capable of carrying a bomb load to Europe and return non-stop, will be christened "Mars" for the mythological god of war.

When the craft is placed in commission, it presumably will be added to the navy's Atlantic forces patrolling for Axis surface and undersea raiders in American defensive waters. The navy's sky queen carries a crew of 11 men and has an interior space approximately the size of a 10-room house.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, November 9.

SUNDAY'S horoscope may be a favorable one for approaching superiors or those in authority for advancement, promotion, preferment and favors generally, as these will be found in a gracious and generous mood. Other expansive testimonies promise some financial success but in moderate degree. However there is a sign suggesting overdoing, impetuosity or rash and hurried conditions which would prove detrimental.

Those whose birthday it is should attain promotion, preferment, favors and other tokens of esteem and liking from superiors, employers or others in high places. Also there may be signs of moderate financial increase, with most things under a generous and expansive influence. But a danger is seen from hasty, rash, impulsive and quarrelsome conduct.

For Monday, November 10.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast should be a generally propitious one with all this thriving if attention to duty, application, and industry be brought to bear sound objectives. In this an unusual or exceptional talent may seek expression, possibly in connection with drama, science, art, literature or even some spectacular financial coup.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of an exceptional year, in which romance, adventure, drama and thrills hold sway either in practical labors or in the form of writing, invention, discovery, financial strokes or other creative expression.

FLYNN-DAMITA MARRIAGE OFF

Beauteous Lili Asks Divorce, Charges Actor Husband With Cruelty.

ahead in the marriage of Flynn vs. Damita.

Flynn once came home to his wife, only to have her, with a gleam in her big black eyes, chase him zig-zag across Union Air Terminal. She was about to pounce on him when a couple of cops, deciding she was a menace to aerial navigation, ruined the denouement. They removed her from the runways. Flynn escaped, unscathed.

"She loves him," Warner Brothers press agents said next morning. And so on, on and off, until six months ago when Miss Damita became the mother of Sean Leslie Flynn. This, said a fan magazine, indicated that tiny hands would hold tight forever more the bonds of matrimonial bliss in the Flynn house.

Only Miss Flynn wasn't cooperating. She moved out of her husband's house last August and said she hoped she never saw him again. She'd done the same thing three years before, only to go with Flynn to Europe on a second honeymoon. So the experts insisted, even as late as yesterday, that Miss Damita still loved Errol.

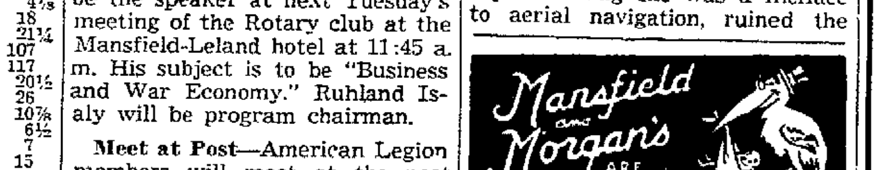

They must have been mistaken.
